MEMORANDUM & ORDER

GORTON, J.

The Court has carefully considered the assented-to motion to continue January 2021 trial filed by defendants I-Hsin "Joey" Chen, Amy Colburn, Gregory Colburn, Elisabeth Kimmel, William McGlashan, Jr. and Marci Palatella ("Group 2 defendants") (Docket No. 1512) and the declarations filed ex parte and under seal in support of that motion (Docket Nos. 1516, 1517, 1518, 1522 & 1526). The Court will allow the motion because of the current logistical difficulties in conducting a multiple-defendant, criminal jury trial while maintaining the necessary safeguards during the continuing pandemic. The continuance is not, however, to be understood as warranting an indefinite postponement of the trial based upon current procedural difficulties faced by the parties and witnesses.

In the extended time provided during this continuance, counsel shall make arrangements 1) to complete discovery by taking video depositions, 2) to meet in person or by videoconference with parties and witnesses such that documents can be reviewed and witnesses prepared remotely and 3) for parties and witnesses who must be present at trial to do whatever is necessary, including requisite quarantining, to be available in person at trial. The parties are encouraged to agree upon the appearance of witnesses at trial by video deposition where at all possible.

This is a criminal case in which the initial indictments were returned in March, 2019 and, even in light of the difficulties caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, two years is long enough to wait for trial.

ORDER
